WE DID IT!

Thanks to 181 donors from around the world, we surpassed our goal by raising $31,082 via an Indiegogo campaign to support WoFoNet.

The goal of the campaign was to turn our new ECE network — WoFoNet — into a state-of-the-art private online professional network, to enable professionals caring for children ages 0 – 8 around the world to share personal and professional stories, engage in mutual projects, and connect the children in their programs. We believe that through these connections, participants will enrich each other's perspectives on life and education, and that this professional growth will have a positive impact on their work with young children.

Voices of Children Documentary Project

The Voices of Children Project supports adults to understand young children's diverse perspectives on their rights. A core goal is the creation of a video documentary that advocates for children's rights in cultural contexts worldwide. Foundational values for the project come from the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child and our belief that children in the early childhood years are competent and capable human beings, who realize and are able to communicate their rights.

As mentors, we will guide participating educators from around the globe through the process of identifying their understandings of rights, learning to listen to children, and supporting children to voice their rights through both verbal and non-verbal expression. The educators' video recordings of children will be edited to create the documentary. As a powerful rights statement, the Voices of Children Documentary Project will provide a resource for advocates that can initiate a dialogue with educators, legislators, and leaders throughout the world.
