

Margie Carter's article "Looking for core values" (Exchange, September/October 2010) challenges you to:

"Begin to look for core values in every aspect of your organizational culture, policies, and use of resources."

Practice Looking for Core Values

As you study each of the photos on this page, ask yourself questions such as these:

- What does this suggest the program believes children, families, and staff deserve?
- How would I describe the core values I see reflected?
- What does this provoke me to reconsider in my own setting?

PHOTOGRAPHS PROVIDED BY THE AUTHOR

Hallway in Chicago
Commons Area

Training room
at London Bridge

Child at London Bridge

Children at Hilltop
Children's Center

Reprinted with permission from Exchange magazine.
Visit us at www.ChildCareExchange.com or call (800) 221-2864.
Multiple use copy agreement available for educators by request.